Positive economics (as opposed to normative economics) is the branch of economics that concerns the description, quantification and explanation of economic phenomena. It focuses on facts and cause-and-effect behavioral relationships and notes that economic theories must be consistent with existing observations. Positive economics as science, concerns analysis of economic behavior, to determine

Economic. In economics a resource is defined as a service or other asset used to produce goods and services that meet human needs and wants. Economics itself has been defined as the study of how society manages and allocates its scarce resources. Classical economics recognizes three categories of resources, also referred to as factors of production: land, labor, and capital.
